Woman takes sanctuary to resist her deportation

Kensington. As Washington debates "amnesty," an immigrant facing deportation seeks safety in a place of worship.

The impromptu home where a Honduran woman and her family will now live is in the corner of a Kensington church.

"It's small, but we have everything that we need," said Angela Navarro, 28, who is facing a final deportation order.

Hastily constructed plywood walls separate bedrooms, and they have access to the church kitchen.

"The most important thing is that I'm here with my husband and children," Navarro said.

On Tuesday, Navarro moved into West Kensington Ministry on Norris Square.

She had quit her job as a cook to take sanctuary full time, along with her husband and two children, ages 8 and 11, who are all legal U.S. citizens.

They can come and go, but Navarro must stay in the church at all times to avoid the risk of deportation.

"It hurts to know that your daughter at any moment could be deported," said Navarro's father, Rene. "But it's important, because we're showing that we also have value, the same as anyone in this country."

Navarro is the ninth immigrant nationwide and the first on the east coast to take sanctuary in a place of worship to avoid deportation, according to New Sanctuary Movement of Philadelphia, a group that supports undocumented immigrants.

Just days ago, The New York Times reported that President Barack Obama would sign an executive order granting amnesty to some undocumented immigrants in the U.S. as early as this week.

But that does not comfort Navarro.

"He has spoken. He has said a lot of words. But he hasn't done anything yet," she said of Obama.

Additionally, amnesty might not even affect Navarro's deportation order status.

"The devil is in the details," said Rev. Adan A. Mairena, pastor of West Kensington Ministry. "Their plan is talking about amnesty for 3 to 5 million people. If it's very selective as to who's in, who's out, that's not enough."

For now, Navarro said she will use her time at the church to pray and engage in hobbies like playing guitar and drawing.

"I know that we are going to struggle until we win," she said.

Facing deportation

Navarro plans to take sanctuary until the deportation order against her is lifted. She hopes to ultimately become a U.S. citizen one day.

- It is the policy of U.S. Immigrations and Customs Enforcement to not undertake "enforcement actions" at "sensitive locations" such as churches, unless "exigent circumstances exist" or other law enforcement actions lead the officers there, an official confirmed.

Talk show. Hero teen, rescued cop on 'Ellen'

Police officer Mark Kimsey and Joe Chambers, 17, who helped pull Kimsey from his car before the engine ignited, will be interviewed on The Ellen Degeneres Show today at 4 p.m.

Chambers was honored by City Council last week for rushing to help Kimsey after the officer's car collided with a civilian vehicle on Nov. 8. Both drivers were trapped in their cars.

Johnson has avoided the public eye and did not attend the City Council event honoring him for his heroism. METRO

Steven Martorano is accused of stealing bail payments. D.A.'S OFFICE

DA: Court official stole $150,000

Steven R. Martorano, 42, a former court official who supervised collected bail payments, turned himself into police Tuesday on charges of stealing $155,000 in bail payments, according to the District Attorney's office.

The funds, intended to pay off prisoners' bails, were stolen between 2010 and 2011.

Martorano allegedly used the funds to pay off debts at his side businesses, a helicopter company and pizza shop, and to pad his daughter's bank account.

Two weeks after new accounting procedures were introduced at the First Judicial District's Bail Acceptance Unit in February 2011, Martorano quit and allegedly took payment log books with him. METRO

South Philly Sports Complex gets a second casino license

Packer Ave. LIVE! Hotel & Casino will be built at the corner of Packer Avenue and Darien Street in South Philadelphia.

Rendering of the planned Live! Hotel & Casino, which was awarded the city's second casino license Tuesday. / PROVIDED

Philadelphia's second casino will be built in the South Philadelphia Sports Complex.

The Pennsylvania Gaming Control Board Tuesday unanimously awarded the city's second casino license to the partnership of the Baltimore-based Cordish Companies and Greenwood Gaming, LLC.

Their $425 million proposal, Live! Hotel & Casino, is slated for the corner of Packer Avenue and Darien Street.

The new 200,000 square-foot casino will include 125 table games, 2,000 slots and electronic games and a new hotel with 240 rooms.

The Holiday Inn hotel, which currently sits on the site, will be demolished.

Robert Greene, chairman of LIVE! Hotel & Casino, said he hopes to break ground in the next eight months and open in the next 15 to 18 months — "in a perfect world," Greene said.

"So you have somebody who maybe doesn't like it, but by and large, we have enjoyed community support," said David Cordish, chairman of the Cordish Companies, regarding the South Philadelphia residents who have opposed the casino's construction.

During the Gaming Board meeting, a police officer approached gambling opponent Helen Gym, leader of Parent's United for Public Education, and took away her sign, which read: "Don't gamble with our communities."

With Atlantic City an hour's drive from the city, and with Parks Casino in Bensalem and SugarHouse Casino in Fishtown, critics have questioned whether another casino would saturate the market.

"Casinos closing in Atlantic City probably works in Philadelphia's favor because it's less competition," Cordish said.

The Live! proposal beat out two Center City submissions, which included one at the old Inquirer building at Broad and Callowhill Streets.

- It also beat out the other at 8th and Market Streets, as well as another Sports Complex proposal at Front Street and Pattison Avenue.
- The losing bidders have 30 days to appeal the decision, but the board has to this point never overturned a decision.

Doylestown. Central Bucks West High fires its football coach

Superintendent David Weitzel said in a statement Tuesday that Brian Hansel, head coach of the Central Bucks West High School football team, was dismissed after the district concluded its investigation into reports of player hazing.

The suburban high school, which has long carried a reputation as a football powerhouse, canceled the remainder of its football season at the end of October after the allegations of player hazing first surfaced. The allegations included players grabbing each other's crotches, while clothed, in August.

Hansel and his assistant coaches were suspended shortly after the investigation began. The assistant coaches' suspensions were lifted, however, and their future with the team will be decided after a new head coach is hired.

The search for a new head coach will begin immediately, according to the statement.

Hansel, who teaches at the school, will maintain that position. Students were not disciplined.

Allegations included older players hazing younger players after a scrimmage game and before a family picnic on Aug. 16.

- Younger players received mandatory haircuts and rookies were forced to walk through the showers with towels over their heads.

Five killed in attack at Jerusalem synagogue

Intolerance. Attack by Palestinians comes amid wave of deaths on both sides of conflict.

Jews in Jerusalem near the site of the attack. / GETTY IMAGES

A pair of Palestinians armed with butcher's cleavers and a gun killed four worshipers and an Israeli police officer at a synagogue in Jerusalem in an attack that escalated months of violence in the city.

Three of the victims had dual U.S. and Israeli citizenship, and the fourth was an Israeli and British citizen. The two assailants, both from east Jerusalem, were shot and killed.

The Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine claimed responsibility, saying in a e-mail that the attack was a "natural response" to the Israeli occupation.

Israel's Public Security Minister Yitzhak Aharonovitch urged soldiers and security guards to start carrying their weapons even when off-duty.

Medics for the Zaka emergency service said they found the victims wrapped in prayer shawls and holding prayer books lying in pools of blood. One worshiper's arm had been chopped off, Zaka said.

Tension in Jerusalem has been heightened by disputes over prayer rights at the contested shrine known to Muslims as the al-Aqsa mosque and to Jews as the Temple Mount, and by the death of a Palestinian bus driver.

Palestinian Authority President Mahmoud Abbas denounced the synagogue attack and called for a sustained period of "complete calm." He's urged Jews be barred from the al-Aqsa mosque complex and condemned the bus driver's death as "a heinous crime." An Israeli autopsy determined it was a suicide. BLOOMBERG

Consumers rush to get free TV after Supreme Court ruling

U.S. households to get free TV with slick little micro antenna device engineered to pull in all over-the-air TV channels for free as law forces network giants to broadcast all TV signals regionally to all 50 states

Free TV: Crystal clear HDTV picture with no cable, no satellite or internet connection and no monthly bills

Everyone fed up with high cable and satellite bills, huge channel bundles and poor customer service are now flocking to get a slick little micro antenna device that lets U.S. households watch broadcast TV legally without paying a cable or satellite company for it and no monthly bills.

So much attention is now being focused on this slick little device since the High Court handed down the big win for consumers.

The landmark decision highlights the public's ability to get all the top rated national TV network and regional shows broadcast over the air absolutely free.

The only thing consumers need to do to get the slick little micro antenna device is call the Free TV Order Hotline beginning at 8:30am this morning or simply return the Free TV Claim Form printed at the bottom of this page before the 3-day postmark deadline ends.

Everyone who does is getting the slick little $88 device at a real steal because it pulls in crystal-clear digital TV channels for free with no monthly bills.

The target audience for the slick little micro antenna device has been young urban professionals who don't want to watch more than 20 or 30 live TV channels. But now older folks are snapping up the slick little device because it's rapidly becoming popular for those on fixed incomes and anyone who just doesn't want to pay a cable or satellite bill anymore.

"When advanced technology enables consumers to just plug in a simple device to get free TV, consumers are the winners," said David Martin, Senior Analyst at CompTek, the company that makes the sleek little micro antenna device that works on virtually any TV.

"This special advertising feature is being so widely published because there's never a monthly bill to pay and all the channels you get are absolutely free," Martin said.

"That's why the slick little device is not like being tied to a cable or satellite company. The device is engineered to access solely over-the-air signals that include all the top rated national and all broadcast stations, like DISNEY (ABC), COMCAST (NBC), CBS, 21st Century FOX (FOX), PBS, CW and about 90% of the most watched TV shows like America's Got Talent, NCIS, The Big Bang Theory, 60 Minutes, The Bachelorette, Blue Bloods, Dateline, Person of Interest, American Idol, The Voice, Dancing With the Stars, CSI, Two and a Half Men, Sunday Night Football plus news, weather and sports all for free with no monthly bills," Martin said.

That means consumers who get the slick little device can channel surf through all the nations top favorite TV shows. The number of shows and channels consumers get depends on where they live. People living in large metropolitan areas can get up to 53 crystal-clear digital channels, while people in outlying areas will get less. That means even consumers in rural areas that pull in NBC, ABC, CBS, FOX and PBS broadcasts will still get hundreds of shows each year to watch for free.

"It's so simple all you do is just plug it into the back of your TV and place the razor thin micro device on a window or wall, then autoscan does all the rest. It works on virtually any model TV and you get a stunning HDTV quality picture," Martin said.

"It just doesn't make any sense to keep paying for TV when you can get all the top rated network channels and hundreds of shows absolutely free," he said.

But there is no time to waste, early reports show the free TV Hotlines are extremely busy.

So, if lines are busy keep trying, all calls will be answered. (Continues on next page)

■ FREE TV WITH NO CABLE BILLS: Thanks to a slick little micro antenna device that plugs into the back of any TV, consumers are getting free crystal-clear digital channels without cable or satellite. Its like getting a new HDTV for free. That's why U.S. residents are flooding the Free TV Hotlines and rushing to the Post Office to return the Free TV Claim Form reprinted at the bottom of this page. Consumers in all 50 states who want to get Free TV with no monthly bills just need to call within 72 hours or beat the 3-day postmark deadline. Consumers should begin calling the free TV Hotlines at 1-888-862-3559 Ext.60434 beginning at 8:30am or be sure the Free TV Claim Form is postmarked by midnight 3 days from today's publication date.

WHO WINS IN SUPREME COURT'S LANDMARK DECISION

WINNERS:

CONSUMERS

Consumers who get a slick little micro antenna device like the razor thin Clear-Cast® brand will get free TV with no monthly bills. The courts ruling emboldens the ability for consumers to legally use the slick little device in their own home to get free TV. The simple device is engineered to pull in nothing but free TV channels in crystal-clear digital picture with no cable, satellite or internet connection. That's why this slick little micro antenna is a real steal at just $88 because it is such a smart alternative for everyone who is sick and tired of paying cable and satellite bills.

NETWORKS AND TV STATIONS

With the victory, all major networks and TV stations get to protect their copyrights, but they must continue to comply with Federal Law 47CFR SEC. 1.4000 which allows consumers who have a slick little micro antenna device to receive all the crystal-clear over-the-air broadcast channels for free. Shown here are a handful of the major networks that must broadcast over the air channels that consumers can receive for free with the slick little micro antenna devices that saves money by not picking up expensive cable only channels like ESPN so there's never a monthly bill for consumers to pay.

Network trademarks and programs are the property of their respective owners and are not affiliated with or endorsing the antenna devices. Consumers report the crystal-clear picture quality with the Clear-Cast brand micro antenna device is the best quality picture they've ever seen.

MOVIE STUDIOS

Hollywood cheered the high court's decision because consumers who have a slick little micro antenna device will receive all of the major network Hollywood movies broadcast over the air for free.

LOSERS:

AEREO

Aereo will likely suspend its business since the court's decision after it developed a way to bootleg major TV network's content. Aereo charged subscribers $8 to $12 a month to lease a dime size remote antenna located in the company's facility.

DEVICE MAKERS

The Computer & Communications Industry Association backed Aereo's position, having concerns that the ruling could be detrimental to other cloud services.

CORD CUTTERS

TV viewers in large cities such as New York, Dallas and Boston who relied on Aereo's service that provided more than two dozen local channels.

Group of Hong Kong protesters break into government building

Protesters are demanding open nominations in Hong Kong's next election for chief executive in 2017. Beijing has said it will allow a vote in 2017, but only between prescreened candidates. / GETTY IMAGES

Unrest.

A small group of Hong Kong pro-democracy protesters broke into the city's legislature via a side door early on Wednesday, and police stopped others forcing their way in as tensions in the Chinese-controlled city escalated following a period of calm.

The flare-up came just hours after court bailiffs managed to clear part of a protest camp in the heart of the city that has been occupied by pro-democracy demonstrators for nearly two months, while leaving most of the main protest site intact.

About 100 riot police with helmets, batons and shields stood guard outside the government building in the early hours of Wednesday, facing off with protesters who are demanding free elections for the city's next leader in 2017.

"Police retreat!" the protesters chanted.

It was the first time protesters had broken into a key public building, defying the expectations of many political analysts who had predicted that Hong Kong's most tenacious and protracted protest movement would slowly wind down.

The escalation came in the early hours of Wednesday when a small group of protesters charged toward the legislature and used metal barricades and concrete tiles to ram a glass side door. They eventually smashed through, with several managing to get inside, according to witnesses. REUTERS

CEO pay exceeded tax payments at 7 top US firms

Twenty-five of the 100 highest paid U.S. CEOs earned more last year than their companies paid in federal income tax, according to a study by a Washington think tank.

At a time when lawmakers are facing tough choices in a quest to slash the national debt, the Institute for Policy Studies, a left-leaning group, said it also found many of the companies spent more on lobbying than they did on taxes.

The senior Democrat on the House of Representatives oversight committee, Elijah Cummings, called for hearings on executive compensation "to examine the extent to which the problems in CEO compensation that led to the economic crisis continue to exist today."

Several companies mentioned in the report took issue with its methodology and said they paid all taxes owed.

General Electric spokesman Andrew Williams called the study "inaccurate" and noted it did not include significant income taxes paid in 2010 for previous years, or state taxes paid. "GE pays what it owes," he wrote in an email response to questions. REUTERS

Troops. NATO leader sees 'serious military buildup' in Ukraine

A Pro-Russian separatist fighter stands guard at a checkpoint. / GETTY IMAGES

NATO Secretary-General Jens Stoltenberg denounced on Tuesday what he called a serious Russian military buildup both inside Ukraine and on the Russian side of the border and urged Moscow to pull back its troops.

Stoltenberg said NATO saw movement of troops, equipment, tanks, artillery and also of advanced air defense systems in violation of a ceasefire agreement.

Russia denies providing arms or troops to support a separatist pro-Russian rebellion in eastern Ukraine, which began after the removal of a Kremlin-oriented Ukrainian president by mass protests in February. A ceasefire was agreed in early September, but fighting flared again recently.

Stoltenberg told reporters as he arrived for a meeting with European Union defense ministers he had information on a buildup inside Ukraine.

Quoted

"We also see a military buildup on the Russian side of the border. ... This is a serious military buildup, and we call on Russia to pull back its troops."

Stoltenberg

Russia denied similar accusations last week by NATO's top military commander, U.S. Air Force General Philip Breedlove, who said NATO had spotted military equipment arriving from Russia in regions of east Ukraine held by pro-Russian separatist rebels.

General-Major Igor Konashenkov, a Russian Defense Ministry official, dismissed Breedlove's comments last week as anti-Russian "hot air." REUTERS

Crooks blow up ATMs in crimes

Chilean thieves have a new way of stealing cash from ATMs: They blow them up.

The method is simple. Use a hose to inject propane into the machine while being careful to seal all cracks and vents with duct tape, then light the fuel with a spark. The top of the machine explodes, leaving the cash tray almost intact.

"The whole theft can take less than three minutes," says Pedro Valdivia, a former Chilean police commander and security consultant. "The banks' response to the problem has been the cheapest one of all: not replacing them."

The pyrotechnics have contributed to a 62 percent jump in automated teller machine robberies through September, according to an emailed statement from Chilean police. A 13 percent drop in the number of ATMs in the first nine months of the year following 375 attacks has caused long lines to form at the 7,877 remaining dispensers, making withdrawals a test of endurance. The number of machines peaked at 9,313 in March 2013. BLOOMBERG

UN calls for North Korea referral to international court

The U.N. General Assembly committee dealing with human rights passed a resolution on Tuesday calling for the U.N. Security Council to consider referring North Korea to the International Criminal Court (ICC) for alleged crimes against humanity.

The nonbinding resolution passed by the U.N. Third Committee linked the alleged abuses to the policies of North Korea's top leadership and called on the Security Council to consider targeted sanctions against those responsible for such crimes.

Tuesday's vote followed a U.N. Commission of Inquiry report published in February detailing wide-ranging abuses in North Korea, including the use of prison camps, systematic torture, starvation and killings comparable to Nazi-era atrocities. REUTERS

Metro and Scoopshot. Make money from your mobile photos!

Did you snap an amazing picture at a recent parade? Post it on Scoopshot. Were you on the scene of an accident or major event? Post it to Scoopshot. You shot it? We want it.

Metro is excited to announce its new partnership with Scoopshot, a global crowdsourcing photo and video service that gives the community more of an editorial voice.

With the power of your smartphone and the ease of Scoopshot, everyone can be a freelance photographer. When you join Scoopshot, you will join an entire community of casual and professional freelance photographers who use Scoopshot to distribute and make money from their photos.

"Metro is all about news you can use, and what could be better than news you can use to make extra cash?" said Aleksander Korab, editor-in-chief of Metro. "Scoopshot lets Metro have thousands of photographers. It will give us unique and exclusive content and allow us to get away from boring agency images."

The Scoopshot app / SCOOPSHOT

Members of the community will be able to be paid for the photos they take for Metro to use online or in print! In addition, Scoopshot also allows you to earn money from in-image ads. When Metro embeds an image that you have uploaded to Scoopshot on its website, an ad will appear at the bottom of the image. Every time someone looks at your photo you will be rewarded with a share of the advertising revenue generated!

How do you do it? Simply download the Scoopshot app on your smartphone, register and begin sharing your photos. It's as easy as that.

We hope you join us and look forward to seeing your photos in our paper.

Bob Marley's family to lend name to brand of marijuana

Marley died of cancer in 1981 at the age of 36. / GETTY IMAGES

Profits. Investors aim to profit from wave of marijuana legalization laws using the late reggae legend's name.

The family of reggae icon Bob Marley and a Seattle-based private equity firm on Tuesday said they are launching the first global cannabis brand with marijuana products sold under a name long tied to a plant he lovingly called "the herb."

The brand, dubbed Marley Natural, marks the first time the family's name would adorn packages of cannabis products ranging from strains similar to those Marley may have smoked in his homeland Jamaica to concentrates, oils and infused lotions sold in countries and U.S. states that have taken steps to decriminalize and legalize pot use and sales.

The Marley Natural brand would likely be seen on cannabis and other products and accessories by late 2015 under the 30-year global licensing arrangement struck between the family and Seattle-based private equity firm Privateer Holdings.

The agreement came weeks after two more states voted to legalize marijuana for recreational use in systems that would usher in retail shops similar to those already operating in Colorado and Washington state.

The sale of cannabis remains illegal in much of the world, but countries mainly in Europe and the Americas have decrminalized it by varying degrees. Half of U.S. states have allowed its medicinal use. Marijuana remains illegal under federal law. REUTERS

Uber exec suggests 'digging up dirt' on media critics

A senior executive at ride-sharing company Uber suggested that the company should spend a million dollars to hire a team of opposition researchers to "dig up dirt" on its critics in the media, BuzzFeed reported.

The comments, BuzzFeed said, came from Emil Michael, Uber's senior vice president for business, during a private dinner in New York last week. He later said he believed the conversation was off the record, according to the social news and entertainment website.

Over dinner, Michael outlined the notion of hiring a team that could, he said, help Uber fight back against the press — they'd look into "your personal lives, your families," and give the media a taste of its own medicine, according to the BuzzFeed article, written by Ben Smith, the site's editor-in-chief.

"The remarks attributed to me at a private dinner — borne out of frustration during an informal debate over what I feel is sensationalistic media coverage of the company I am proud to work for — do not reflect my actual views and have no relation to the company's views or approach," Michael said in a statement. Don't forget those on four legs this season

Adopt. Shelters are full, especially near the holidays.

When it comes to abandoned animals in Philadelphia, there's good news and bad news.

Bad news first: More than 30,000 animals pour into the city's animal control center every year. Every day, 82 animals face euthanasia.

Now the good news.

"This year we're on track to rescue about 2,600 animals. This is a record-breaking year for us and we're going to rescue more animals now than we ever have before," says Melissa Levy, executive director of Philadelphia Animal Welfare Society.

PAWS, Philadelphia's largest no-kill shelter, plucks animals from the center and matches them with new families, rescuing as many animals as possible from death and then quickly filling the vacant spot with a new rescue.

Handling that many adoptions every year requires an army of volunteers.

"We have volunteers helping in every single aspect of our daily operations. Every day of the week, in whatever way they're interested, we have lots of options," Levy says. "As much or as little time as you're willing to give, we're happy to have you."

PAWS can credit its record adoptions with a new branch in Northeast Philadelphia that helped the rescue group amp up its family and pet matches. But running the center means even more volunteers are needed.

"Any place where people can lend a hand, we always need help," Levy says.

PAWS and other no-kill animal rescue centers manage to get about two-thirds of the 30,000 abandoned animals into homes every year.

"As a city, we're doing better and better at saving animals. We're nowhere near where we want to be, but we're getting closer every year," says Levy. "We need to keep expanding what we do as a city as a whole and that's why it's so important for people to join us if they can."

People who can't make a time commitment can still help out. PAWS needs a constant supply of canned pet food, blankets, paper towels, bleach and more. PAWS can also help people cross items off their holiday gift list.

"We always encourage people to consider not giving a 'thing' as a gift, but making a donation in honor of an animal lover," Levy suggests. "It helps us save more animals, and we'll send a nice holiday card to let the recipient know they've been honored."

Animal shelters need volunteers to help rescue, process and facilitate adoptions of cats and dogs. / PROVIDED

Meet Kevin, a third-grader. Reading is hard for him, and there's no one there to help. It's even hard for his mom. She's not home much because she works all the time. Kevin says he has nothing to read anyway.

That is until United Way intervened. After being connected to age-appropriate books and help with daily reading at home and in school, Kevin discovered a new love for reading.

Kevin represents the more than 650 third grade students who received support from United Way's Impact Fund last year to improve their reading skills. Through United Way's Early Grade Literacy Program, we're working with local schools to ensure that all kids read at grade level by the end of third grade because we know that's when they transition from learning to read to reading to learn.

When you invest in United Way's Impact Fund, you are making the future brighter for many children like Kevin. Join the movement to improve lives today.

Philabundance feeds 75,000 people each week and help is still needed this holiday season.

It's the time of year for holidays built around gorging ourselves. But 900,000 local people have no idea where their next meal is coming from, much less a big holiday feast.

Hunger is a sneaky, secret problem for many communities, as regional food bank Philabundance knows all too well. The nonprofit, which works with 400 partners in five Pennsylvania and four New Jersey counties, serves 75,000 people each week.

But that doesn't come close to the actual number of hungry people in the Delaware Valley.

"We estimate there are 900,000 at risk of hunger [in the Delaware Valley]," says Lindsay Hughes, public relations manager for Philabundance. "Every zip code that we serve has need. There are people who would never think their neighbor down the street is struggling or the senior citizen at church is in need of food."

That's where volunteers come in. From food drives to sorting donations, Philabundance and its partners could use a helping hand.

"We need volunteers all year-round. Last year, we had 17,000 volunteers come in and we distributed 33 million pounds of food, and volunteers help sort and pack a lot of food," Hughes says.

The holidays are actually Philabundance's busiest volunteer season, but there are plenty of ways to help out.

"We need people to do community food drives," says Hughes. "Anyone who wants to hold a community food drive can log onto our Website and go to our 'take action' page. We have resources, like fliers and food boxes, and our food drive coordinator can work with the organizer to get the word out."

Radio effort

Preston and Steve of 93.3 WMMR are taking their fight against hunger to the XFINITY Live! parking lot. From Dec. 1-Dec. 5, the two will live in an RV and collect nonperishable food.

- If you can't make it, Acme Markets has food donation boxes set up throughout the region to help Philabundance.

Philabundance also needs cash. The organization puts even the best couponers to shame: For every $1 donated, Philabundance can provide two meals.

The best way to help out Delaware Valley's hungry is to remember them long after the turkey leftovers are gone. Philabundance sees its volunteerism dip starting in the winter and through the spring, and that's when the food bank could truly use more manpower.

Head to Philabundance.org and click on "Take Action" to start helping hungry people in Philadelphia and surrounding areas.

Those in need

Who's hungry?

There's no one typical profile of a person at risk for hunger. Philabundance clients come from all walks of life; most people don't realize just how precarious food security can be.

"We're seeing a lot of people who never needed food assistance before come to us for help," Lindsay Hughes says. "Maybe someone lost their job and they can pay their bills but need help putting food on the table, or someone got sick and they're overwhelmed with medical bills. It really can be anybody."

Philabundance knows accepting food aid is often difficult, so it makes distribution as dignified as possible.

"Nothing's guaranteed in life and we know anything can happen," Hughes says. "So if you come to us for food, Philabundance will give it to you."

Jaden and Willow Smith go all out with the crazy

Breaking news: Jaden and Willow Smith are not like normal kids. / ALL PHOTOS GETTY IMAGES

Will and Jada Pinkett Smith are apparently ridiculously indulgent parents, and The Times is on it! Jaden and Willow Smith sat down with The New York Times' T Magazine to talk about their music, creativity in general, energies, philosophy — really, all sorts of things that reinforce why giving teens a platform to pontificate is a bad idea. But it's too late, they were given the platform, so let's all take a moment to bask in the pretension.

On creativity:

"We're just trying to make music that we think is cool. We don't think a lot of the music out there is that cool. So we make our own music. We don't have any song that we like to listen to on the P.C.H. by any other artist, you know?" JADEN

"That's what I do with novels. There are no novels that I like to read so I write my own novels, and then I read them again, and it's the best thing." WILLOW

On time and relativity:

"It's proven that how time moves for you depends on where you are in the universe. It's relative to beings and other places. But on the level of being here on Earth, if you are aware in a moment, one second can last a year." JADEN

"I mean, time for me, I can make it go slow or fast, however I please, and that's how I know it doesn't exist." WILLOW

On education:

"Kids who go to normal school are so teenagery, so angsty. ...You never learn anything in school. Think about how many car accidents happen every day. Driver's ed? What's up? I still haven't been to driver's ed because if everybody I know has been in an accident, I can't see how driver's ed is really helping them out." JADEN

"I went to school for one year. It was the best experience but the worst experience. The best experience because I was, like, 'Oh, now I know why kids are so depressed.' But it was the worst experience because I was depressed." WILLOW

On life goals:

"I have a goal to be just the most craziest person of all time. And when I say craziest, I mean, like, I want to do like Olympic-level things. I want to be the most durable person on the planet." JADEN

"I think by the time we're 30 or 20, we're going to be climbing as many mountains as we can possibly climb." WILLOW

Neil Young won't keep rocking in line at Starbucks

Neil Young, rock's resident cranky uncle, is boycotting Starbucks over a lawsuit challenging Vermont's new genetically modified food labeling law. "I used to line up and get my latte every day, but yesterday was my last one," Young writes on his Website. "If we can generate enough attention, we can push Starbucks to withdraw its support for the lawsuit and then pressure other companies to do the same." A spokesman for Starbucks, however, claims Young is off-base. "The petition claiming that Starbucks is part of this litigation is completely false and we have asked the petitioners to correct their description of our position," a company statement reads. Is it weird that I lost a little respect for Young when he admitted he drank lattes from Starbucks every day? I mean, that just doesn't sit right.

'Breaking Bad' meets 'Frozen'

Ah, Disney hits and critically acclaimed TV drama — two great tastes that taste great together. The good people at Animeme have created the most delightful of mash-ups, "Do You Want to Build a Meth Lab?" The song — and accompanying animation — blends "Frozen" and "Breaking Bad" in such a seamless way that you'd think they told the same story. Beware, though: MAJOR "Breaking Bad" spoilers contained within.

Benedict Cumberbatch shows off bride-to-be

Now that Benedict Cumberbatch and Sophie Hunter have finished quietly announcing their engagement with his devoted female fans calling for her death, it's safe to take a victory lap in public. Cumberbatch and Hunter made their first shared red carpet appearance this week at the New York premiere of his new film "The Imitation Game."

TV Land cools on 'Hot in Cleveland'

R.I.P. "Hot in Cleveland."

Sorry, Betty White fans. TV Land has officially given the ax to its first original series, "Hot in Cleveland," which just started its sixth season. Seriously, did you know it had been running for six seasons? Weird. Anyway, the show's stars were understandably bummed about the news. Valerie Bertinelli, for example, posted this quote by Shel Silverstein: "There are no happy endings. Endings are the saddest part. So just give me a happy middle and a very happy start."

In December 2012, Live Nation Philly announced it was creating a live-music club with mega-developer Michael Samschick along Columbus Boulevard at the Ajax Metal Company property. Planned as a 2,400-plus capacity room, it's just what Live Nation needs, as rivals AEG and Larry Magid have similarly sized spaces. Nothing has been heard or done about that Live Nation room — until now.

Rumor has it that a booker and developer are looking to speed the process with a (VERY) hopeful opening before Christmas 2015.

After having much of the same staff for decades, the Rittenhouse area's FriSatSun made a major addition in its promotion of vegan-conscious exec chef and bicycle enthusiast Sam Orskog one month ago (she's been FriSatSun sous chef for a minute). Orskog's comfort food menu started over the weekend with vegan items coming soon.

"Gosnell," a TV movie about Kermit Gosnell — the evil Philly abortion doctor — drew so much attention for its record-setting crowdfunding campaign (they raised $2.1 million), producers just optioned "Philadelphia" magazine's Steve Volk's e-book, "Gosnell's Babies," for source material.

Nov. 20 at the Navy Yard's Sub Zero & Fretz showplace, Carla Hall of "The Chew" emcees "America Gets Cooking to Stop Diabetes" with Philly chefs Guillermo Pernot, Delilah Winder and Barbie Marshall, preparing holiday dishes in healthy ways. "It's about turning your favorites healthy so that they taste delish," says rep Tina Breslow.

Into the woods with Jason Clarke

In "The Better Angels," Jason Clarke plays Tom Lincoln, the rugged, remote father of the 16th president, seen enduring the death of his wife, Nancy (Brit Marling), and the arrival of young Abe's stepmom, Sarah (Diane Kruger). But it's no traditional biopic. It's told in a series of montages, with a script Clarke describes as a "blueprint."

"As an actor it allows you to let go of some of the things you have as a signpost or walking sticks to help you along," Clarke says. "You let it go and you find a great amount of freedom and a lack of pressure, which is very refreshing. There is no right or wrong. It's just about capturing the moment of what's between people."

If the acting style was unusual for Clarke — who's now doing plenty of giant films, such as this year's "Dawn of the Planet of the Apes" and "Terminator: Genisys," in which he'll take on John Connor — the actual business of making a film in the midst of nature was not. Clarke grew up on a farm in Australia and is an avid outdoorsman. This was still extreme.

"We really built the cabin out there. We wore clothes that were made from cloth that was right for the time period," he says of the set. "It was a very harsh shoot, particularly as it got cold and wet. But it was part of getting across to the audience where this little boy came from and what he went through, and how he got the bones that he had."

Though the film is about the boy called only "Abe," Clarke's Tom gets more screen time, portrayed as both harsh and quietly loving. "It was a different way of being a father at that point," Clarke explains. "The kid's got to learn how to farm, build, cook, and find heat and shelter. If the father dies, which they did quite young back then, it's his job to step up and support the family. He didn't have time to play."

Tom's character has been disputed over the years, with some historians attacking him as a lout and others supporting him. Wherever the truth lies, the brutality of the times, with their ever-present shadow of death, created relationships that can seem alien to modern audiences. "Parents didn't show a lot of love in those days in the way we think of it now," he says. The same goes for Tom and Abe: "It wasn't that type of relationship. It's [Tom's] job to tell him to do this, that his job is to learn, he's about to be a man. He needs to know what he's doing, otherwise he might die out there."

Working with Terrence Malick

One of the producers of "The Better Angels" is Terrence Malick, who is also a major influence on its style. (Director A.J. Edwards has worked on Malick's last three films.) Clarke even has a role in the legendary filmmaker's "Knight of Cups" — though, like most Malick actors, he's not even sure if he'll be in the final cut. "I really, truly have no idea what it's going to be and how it's going to come out in the end. Terry's got a particular style, particular motives. It's a truly amazing little carnival to work in," Clarke says. "He's got a lot of method to his madness."

JEFFREY WRIGHT
GETTY IMAGES FOR THE AFRICAN-AME

Interview. This Tony winner says we're not as critical of corporations as we are of our government.

Jeffrey Wright doesn't do a ton of splashy blockbusters; he's a respectable thespian — a Tony winner for "Angels in America," a man of the stage and art movies such as "Basquiat."

But "The Hunger Games" franchise is different: It's politically complex. In "Mockingjay — Part 1," he reprises his role as tech master Beetee, now confined to a wheelchair as he aids the rebellion, with Katniss (Jennifer Lawrence) as their mascot.

The third film is so different from the first two.
This is the tricky side of these stories. The third book is about this attempt to reassemble the broken pieces of a society at war with itself. It's intense and messy by design. At the same time, it begins to hit at the heart of the matter in real life.

Jeffrey Wright reprises his role as tech wizard Beetee in "The Hunger Games: Mockingjay — Part 1." / MURRAY CLOSE

Some people have spotted elements of our government in the Capital, particularly the NSA.
What's great about these films is they're wide open to interpretation. I don't see the NSA in anything that's represented in the Capital. Corporations are more representative of the Capital to me. Our government has to be led responsibly, but at least it has a security imperative. But the corporations have zero imperative. They only have a profit imperative. Yet we seem to be more up in arms about the government than these corporations that are digging into personal liberties solely for the sake of making shareholders happy.

Still, any government has to deal with actual threats versus civil liberties.
You have to balance those threats with the protection of civil liberties. Whoever said government was there to promote freedom got it wrong. It's about restricting freedoms. Some people when they're free are a—holes.

Darker films

Close to the edge

The bigger films you tend to do — not just these but the Bond films — have darker edges. Is that the draw?
These films, and the Bond films, too, have a younger audience. I like that these are films that touch on all these themes, whether they're social themes or political themes, but filter them through a lens that young minds can appreciate. I think that's healthy. Particularly for films of this scale, they have a healthy layer of cynicism. We try to make them as thrilling as possible ... but also really try to honor the more resonant personal themes, and do that in a way that's reflective of and not distracting away from the world outside the theater.

Peter Blume can't be categorized

Museum. The influential 20th century painter doesn't fall neatly into any art movement.

The work of Peter Blume spans most of the major American art movements of the 20th century. Born in 1906, he began painting in the 1920s and continued working until shortly before his death in 1992. During that time he drew inspiration from folk art, surrealism, 15th-century Flemish painting and cubism, among other influences, and associated with abstract expressionists and surrealists without ever fully signing on to any single movement.

According to Robert Cozzolino, curator of PAFA's new exhibition "Peter Blume: Nature and Metamorphosis," that independent streak is one reason why an artist recognized as one of the major voices of his generation during his lifetime is now largely unknown.

"I think the fact that we don't think of him as a household name has a lot to do with the way that he conducted his career," Cozzolino says during a tour of the exhibition. "He remained an individual and didn't follow trends or shift his style to be associated with particular groups. He tried to remain apart from that and follow his gut. The way history has been written has often been unfair to those artists who deliberately stayed out of the mainstream, did their own thing and bucked trends."

Throughout his lengthy career, Blume swam upstream by remaining dedicated to figurative art as the art world was rushing headlong into greater abstraction. But that's not to imply that his work held fast to a dull, prosaic realism.

His bold colors, hyper-realistic figures and dreamlike juxtaposition of symbolic imagery borrowed heavily from cubism and surrealism while staying true to his own individual voice. As Cozzolino says, "Blume thought that trying to convey subjective experience and emotional reactions was as valid a form of realism as painting things in a photographic way."

Controversial

What you'll see

The PAFA exhibition is the first major retrospective of Blume's work since 1976 and spans the artist's entire career.

Organized chronologically, "Nature and Metamorphosis" begins with folk-inspired paintings from the 1920s before moving on to the scandalous "South of Scranton," which thrust Blume into the center of a modern art debate in the early 1920s.

Also included is the equally controversial "The Eternal City," which featured Mussolini's head as a jack-in-the-box against a backdrop of Roman ruins; the WPA-aligned allegory "The Rock"; and the vivid "Tasso's Oak," not seen in public since 1961.

A New Kid on 'The McCarthys'

Interview. The new CBS sitcom takes place in Boston, and made one important casting decision: a member of the Boston-originating New Kids on the Block.

With Joey McIntyre on "The McCarthys" and Donnie Wahlberg on "Blue Bloods," CBS is now at 20 percent New Kids on the Block saturation. "We're on different nights, so that's good. We can get one more half-hour out of [the fans]," McIntyre jokes. But those Blockheads — fans of the boy band — are showing their support. "They're very excited about the show. I think of course they're going to be inclined to like something that I'm on or one of us is on, but they're a good audience, they're a smart audience."

McIntyre stars as one of the McCarthys, a Boston family that includes twins Gerard (McIntyre) and Sean (Jimmy Dunn) along with brother Ronny (Tyler Ritter) and sister Jackie (Kelen Coleman), all under the leadership of parents Arthur (Jack McGee) and Marjorie (Laurie Metcalf).

This isn't the first time McIntyre has put his Boston roots to work for an acting gig. McIntyre played one of Melissa McCarthy's brothers in last year's "The Heat," though he says the two families are very different.

"There is a certain aspect to it, a certain niche that Boston brings — an Irish Boston kind of chip on your shoulder, working-class mentality, very opinionated," he says. "There's a certain thing that I think Boston people have, a point of view. And certainly that was the kickoff of where 'The McCarthys' came from. That family in 'The Heat' is similar, but with the "F" word. I mean, the McCarthys would be very, very insulted if you compared us to that family. We think we're much better than that."

"Of course they're going to be inclined to like something that I'm on or one of us is on, but they're a good audience, they're a smart audience." McIntyre, on the support of his fans

If there's a downside to his career as a New Kid, it's the timing when it comes to the average age of his fans — he's never really gotten to indulge in groupie culture. "Back then they were young girls, teenagers, going crazy and figuring all sorts of stuff out," he explains. "Back then they were too young and now they're all beautiful women — and I'm married and happy. Couldn't enjoy you then and can't enjoy you now."

A New Kid's take on the boy band revival

So what does Joey McIntyre think of One Direction and the current boy band resurgence? "It comes in cycles, you know what I mean? You talk about the Jackson 5 and the Osmonds, then New Kids and then Backstreet Boys and *NSYNC. And then we take a break," McIntyre says. "But One Direction doesn't come around every day, you know what I mean? And that's just a massive thing. I'm happy for them. Seems like they're making good pop music and they're good guys. I think they should dance a little bit more, but other than that they seem like good guys."

DIY Thanksgiving decor

Decorate. Set the table with these three crafty centerpiece ideas.

Hosting the big dinner this year? Design bloggers from Hometalk.com, the largest home and garden social network, share these easy-to-make centerpiece ideas that will take the focus off those burned dinner rolls.

Bring in the outdoors

Thanksgiving is the best holiday to forage in your yard (or your neighbor's yard) and collect beautiful branches and pine cones to decorate your place with. The best part: It's free!

If you are lucky enough to find a big log, you can create blogger Yesterfood's rustic centerpiece.

Repurpose

Don't spend money on items that are going to see the light of day for a few hours before getting thrown in the back of the closet until next year. Instead, get creative with old frames, vases and charming doodads laying around. Blogger Country Design Style transformed thrift store frames into modern pumpkins with some fall-colored fabric and sticks from the yard for stems. "I wanted something different for pumpkins on my display shelf this year," she says.

Modern design meets traditional holiday decor with Country Design Style's frame pumpkin project. / PROVIDED

Add unexpected details

Thanksgiving decor doesn't have to involve typical winter berries, plates with images of turkeys or fall foliage. Get all Pinterest on them and add trendy details. Crafts a la Mode potted some oh-so-popular mini succulents on pumpkins for a centerpiece we're sure your guest will have fun Instagramming. #Happy-Thanksgiving. METRO

Working with succulents

"I bought some succulents that were different sizes, different colors and different textures. The moss is also another texture," says Crafts a la Mode.

3-5 DAY TURN AROUND TIME

Celeb listing. Lauren Bacall's Dakota home

Lauren Bacall paid $48,000 for the apartment in 1957. / GETTY IMAGES (INSET)

One thing's for sure about Lauren Bacall: She knew how to turn heads.

What was true of the cinematic grande dame in life continues even after her death in August at 89. Currently making an impression: Her magnificent apartment in New York City's fabled Dakota building. The unit has hit the market with all the pomp and circumstance of an old-time Hollywood blockbuster majestically set in the heart of the Big Apple.

Bacall's nine-room spread overlooking Central Park has been listed for a whopping $26 million. Replete with original detail — including the unchanged floor plan and mahogany wood trim.

The dwelling is entered through a private mahogany vestibule into an 18-foot-wide foyer that leads to a 70-foot gallery connecting the library, 29-foot-wide great room, formal dining room and three bedrooms, including a 22-foot-wide master suite — all of which face the park.

Bacall was as much a fixture in and around the Dakota as any of its other famous residents, who have included John Lennon and Yoko Ono, Judy Garland, Roberta Flack, Connie Chung and John Madden. LAURA VESCY

By the numbers

$48K

The price Bacall paid for the co-op in 1957. Today, that sum would cover four months of the $11,146 monthly maintenance for the unit.

Grooming. Uni K offers a pain-free waxing experience — no joke.

Waxing is at the top of the list of cruel and unusual punishment we put ourselves through in the name of beauty. So a salon such as Uni K Wax Center — which offers a hygienic, affordable and painless experience — sounds like a fairy tale. Well, meet your new fairy godmother. Noemi Grupenmager, founder of Uni K, spent three years perfecting the formula for her all-natural "ouchless, elastic wax" before starting the hair removal franchise in 1993. "Most people think waxing is beyond painful," she says. "But we've had customers walk out saying 'Wow, that didn't hurt at all!' To us, this is the biggest compliment."

Pain-free

Unlike hot wax that is yanked off with cloth strips, Grupenmager's formulation is kept at room temperature so it never hardens or needs to be heated in order to be applied to the skin. Once on, an aesthetician peels off the wax itself with a gentle pull, explains the expert, removing only the hair and follicle, not the skin.

Hygiene first

At Uni K you won't find wax warmers sitting on all day or dipping sticks. Each center has its own "onsite lab" where the exact amount of wax is prepared for a service booked. Each customer gets his or her fresh pot of wax, which is then tossed after the service.

"I developed my own elastic wax, made of natural beeswax, essential oils and a special pine tree resin," says Grupenmager.

Expert advice

Uni K Wax Center plans to expand across the country by the end of 2015. / ROB LOUD

Why wax?

"Waxing is the ideal hair removal for all areas of the body," says Grupenmager. Uni K services include everything from eyebrows to Brazilians for both women and men. "It's a longer-term solution over other types of hair removal as it lasts up to six weeks," she adds. And the best part: less hair overall. "As with regular waxing, the hair strength is weakened and over time the hair regrows more sparsely," she says.

Gizmos and apps for your pet

Now, your pets will never suffer from #FOMO. We review a host of devices that get your beloved animal friends connected online and outfitted with the latest health-tracking apps.

WANISE MARTINEZ, MWN

1 Relax, Fido, relax

Barking all day and chasing cats can be quite stressful for dogs. Our canine companions need a bit of chill-out time and the iCalmDog will help. The fauna-friendly gadget, dubbed the "iPod for dogs," is a portable player preloaded with four hours of classical compositions. The songs target different anxiety issues such as city sounds, aggression, a new puppy, a baby's arrival and thunder-storms. Your buddy will thank you for your refined taste in music. Price: $79.95 to $339.95

2 You'll really understand your dog

Wouldn't it be amazing if your pet could speak your language? This fantasy could become a reality with the "No More Woof" device. Developed by the Nordic Society for Invention and Discovery in Sweden, the headset gadget claims to convert canine brainwaves into English. The product was a success on crowd-funding site Indiegogo and is now in its final prototype development stages, but we have been informed of something promising: Pretty soon you may be able to choose between different voices your dog. How cool is that?

3 An app for a cat

Sometimes cats turn into real devils, especially the young ones. They can't resist destroying sofas and curtains with their claws, an inclination that can cause some real damage. To keep their feline minds and sharp nails under control, try the app Cat Alone. You'll have lots of fun watching your cat chasing a laser pointer, a ladybug, a cockroach or a finger on the screen of your phone or tablet. It may seem silly at first, but when your cat starts playing and stays quiet and focussed, you can rest easy — unless you love your mobile device more than your cat. The app is now available for Android. Price: Free

4 This collar serves as a dog doctor

This device is like having a vet on hand at all times. The Voyce wearable health band keeps track of your canine's everyday health and habits. The sensor-based device monitors your pet's activity levels, heart and respiratory rates, as well as the number of calories your companion burns. All this key information syncs onto your smart phone or computer via Wi-Fi. Announced at the CES 2014 gadget trade fair, Voyce was developed in collaboration with biomedical engineers, canine experts and Cornell University professors. It should launch later this year or early 2015. Price: $299 plus $15/month membership fee

5 Keep track of your pet

If you want to keep tabs on a four-legged friend, this one's for you. The Tagg GPS Pet Tracker is a simple device attached to your pet's collar that monitors his or her location using an interactive map accessed through your smartphone or computer. Tagg can also be set up so other members of your family receive alerts when your naughty pet escapes to explore the neighborhood alone. Price: $99.95 (Two months of service is free and $9.95/month after)

RSV. As enterovirus subsides, another bug is targeting children

The cold weather has been here for weeks, yet the flu has barely made the headlines, crowded out by enterovirus. Though it usually passes as a seasonal respiratory illness without much notice, the virus has severely sickened people, mostly young children, in 47 states, killing 12.

While the end of fall is also the end of peak season for enterovirus, it brings respiratory syncytial virus (RSV), the leading cause of hospitalization for children during their first year of life. We asked pediatrician Dr. Deborah Friedman of Maria Ferrari Children's Hospital about this seasonal illness and what we can expect.

Breathing can become an issue in RSV infections. / STOCKBYTE

1 Will it be as bad as enterorvirus? Friedman says there is no similar risk. "RSV doesn't mutate on a year-to-year basis the same way influenza does, or enterovirus D68; it always seems to be the same sorts of strains."

2 Who is at risk? "Most children will have exposure to this virus by the time they're 2 years old, and in most cases, it's simply a head cold — runny nose, little or no fever, etc.," Friedman says. "However, we do know that in those children who are at risk for RSV, serious infection can occur." Those include babies born prematurely, with chronic lung disease or congenital heart disease.

3 How is it spread? Like the cold, RSV is transmitted person-to-person through fluids like mucus.

4 How to prevent it: Lots of hand washing. And for the upcoming holidays, warn relatives that your baby may be sick, or ask them to stay home if they're sick. For the most at-risk kids there is a drug, Synagis. "It's not a vaccine, but a manufactured antibody that protects children from getting the infection." EVA KIS

Watch for these signs

What are the symptoms?

RSV infection "can present as just a little head cold, little running nose or sneezing. It's not one of those illnesses that gives you a high fever with flu-like symptoms," Friedman says. There can also be wheezing.

Diet pills are making you fat

Study. Though they work as intended, you're probably using them wrong.

This Thanksgiving, don't treat diet pills as a free pass for second helpings, no matter how good your grandfather's cooking is. / FUSE

Using weight-loss pills to kick-start your diet could be sabotaging your goals instead, according to a new study.

Slimming pills have a checkered past, with several brands like the notorious Fen-Phen being recalled over the years for serious side effects, including deaths. But since the Food and Drug Administration started regulating the market, there are now several brands on the market — though their promises are much less spectacular. Still, they could serve as a starting point for those needing a way to begin losing weight.

But that wasn't the finding of a new joint study by three universities.

"Weight-management remedies that promise to reduce the risks of being overweight may undermine consumer motivation to engage in health-supportive behaviors," write Lisa E. Bolton (Pennsylvania State University), Amit Bhattacharjee (Dartmouth College) and Americus Reed II (University of Pennsylvania).

"Put simply, why put effort into living a healthy lifestyle when a weight-management remedy can take care of the problem?"

Study participants were each given free access to a bowl of chocolate cookies, with one group advised ahead of time about a new powerful fat-fighting pill.

The group that believed in the existence of the new pill ate significantly more cookies per person, with some participants consuming as many as 30.

These results suggest that people who most need to lose weight are also the ones most likely to dangerously increase their consumption of unhealthy foods when given an easy way to mitigate the effects of the foods they eat.

Stats

An estimated 35 percent of American adults are obese, according to the Centers for Disease Control.

An estimated 35 percent of American adults are obese, according to the Centers for Disease Control.

One positive finding showed that encouraging consumers to look beyond the marketing and find trustworthy information about a drug was very effective in reducing their false expectations and, therefore, preventing any unhealthy behavior.

"Given the ubiquity of remedies in today's marketplace, more research is needed to understand the impact of remedy marketing on consumers," the authors explain. "There is ample room for policy makers and responsible marketers to improve remedy marketing practices to minimize potentially harmful consequences."

On the market

STOCKBYTE

Since 2010, the Food and Drug Administration has approved several prescription weight-loss pills — which it emphasizes are to be used along with diet and exercise. But health concerns remain with all of them, though the agency considers the potential weight loss benefits to outweigh those risks.

Contrave

A combination of two drugs for addiction and depression; patients lost an average of 2 percent more weight than with a placebo.

Qsymia

A combination of a short-term weight loss pill and an anti-seizure medication; patients lost 6.7-8.9 percent more weight than with placebo.

Belviq

Activates serotonin receptors in the brain, which may help with feeling full after eating less food; patients lost about 3-3.7 percent more weight than with a placebo.

Real morals

Re: 'Assets or liabilities?' (Metro, Nov. 17) Displaying an unwanted amount of Kim Kardashian's skin isn't a question of morals. The way animals are treated on factory farms is immoral. The way child workers are treated on cocoa plantations in Ivory Coast is immoral. The thoughtless way we're changing the world's climate is immoral. Having separate and unequal systems of criminal justice for rich and poor is immoral. Kardashian butt? That's merely tacky.

Assimilate

Re: 'Obama urged to act on immigration' (Metro, Nov. 18) Haven't we been here before? In 1986, with about 3 million illegals, amnesty was granted by the Simpson-Mazzoli Act which was intended to "reform" our immigration system. Now there are approximately 11 million illegals. If "amnesty" is unfortunately granted, what mechanism will be in place to ensure that these former criminals will assimilate into our country? Will they have to learn fluent English as demonstrated by getting a GED diploma and passing a language test? When, and under what circumstances, will those granted citizenship be allowed to vote?

NFL

Peterson done for 2014

An arbitrator ruled Tuesday that the NFL can keep Vikings running back Adrian Peterson on the commissioner's exempt list, which almost certainly rules out any chance that he will play again this season.

NFL power rankings | by Matt Burke

No. 1

Patriots (8-2)

Both the Pats and Cardinals have won six games in a row, but there's little doubt as to which team has been more impressive since Oct. 1. Tom Brady had a relatively bad outing in Indy on Sunday, and the Pats still hung 42 points on the Colts. Jonas Gray won't likely be flirting with 200 yards rushing in a single game again, but does it really matter? The Pats always adjust.

No. 2

Cardinals (9-1)

Michael Floyd had been struggling over the last month. While he only had two catches against the Lions, both of them went for touchdowns.

No. 3

Packers (7-3)

Give the Green Bay defense a hand, for once. It forced five Philly turnovers on Sunday and made Chip Kelly's offense look pedestrian.

No. 4

Chiefs (7-3)

K.C. does more with less as Alex Smith hasn't thrown for more than 225 yards in any game in the Chiefs' five-game streak.

No. 5

Eagles (7-3)

The Eagles are undefeated at the Linc this season at 5-0 but are just 2-3 on the road. They have a cushy home game against the Titans this week.

No. 6

Broncos (7-3)

The Broncos just wrapped up a three-game road trip and on the journey they had a pair of flat tires, getting blown out at the Pats and losing to St. Louis.

No. 7

Lions (7-3)

According to Patspulpit .com, Matthew Stafford is 0-15 on the road against winning teams. He'll be at New England on Sunday.

No. 8

Cowboys (7-3)

The Cowboys are in the opposite boat that the Eagles, Broncos and Lions find themselves in. They're a perfect 4-0 away from the Jerry Dome.

No. 9

Bengals (6-3-1)

This is simply a positive what-have-you-done-for-me-lately deal as no one would be shocked if Cincy loses this Sunday at Houston.

No. 10

49ers (6-4)

The 49ers' wins over the Eagles and Chiefs in Weeks 4 and 5 look mighty good right about now.

No. 11

Ravens (6-4)

Remember when Steve Smith Sr. looked like Steve Smith Jr. earlier this season? Well, he hasn't had over 70 yards receiving in over a month.

No. 12

Colts (6-4)

Few teams have corners like Darrelle Revis and Brandon Browner to throw at T.Y. Hilton and Reggie Wayne, but the Pats laid out a good blueprint.

No. 13

Seahawks (6-4)

Doesn't it feel like the Seahawks' record should be 3-7 right now? They better get their act together quick.

Eagles take step back, reevaluate the attack

NFL. A lack of competent execution cost the Eagles big time in Green Bay on Sunday.

Chris Polk and the rest of the Eagles' running attack has been subdued by a bevy of defenses. / GETTY IMAGES

There was really nothing that worked Sunday against the Packers.

The run game really didn't pick up steam until the Birds were out of the game. Mark Sanchez committed three turnovers. And the defense couldn't stop anyone.

With the Titans looming in Week 12 as a possible trap game (the Cowboys await on Thanksgiving), the Eagles have done some careful analysis of their shortcomings in Green Bay.

As far as quarterback play goes, Mark Sanchez was pretty average. While he's compiled two 300-yard games in back-to-back starts (for the first time in his career), the jury is still out as to whether the signal caller can lead the Eagles to a Super Bowl.

"I think he battled through it," offensive coordinator Pat Shurmur said. "He was no different than any other position on our team, especially on offense. We didn't play near well enough. We didn't execute at a level that's consistent with our standards, and we got beat."

Despite the subpar results, Shurmur does think Sanchez is gradually improving as the leader of Chip Kelly's offense.

"None of us did anything that was good enough to win, but he did some things better in this game than he did in the last game," Shurmur said. "I thought he got the ball out quickly."

When he wasn't dropping back to pass, Sanchez was handing the ball off to a struggling rushing attack.

Just a week after gaining under 40 yards on the ground, the Birds did eclipse 100 yards against the Packers, but their 3.5 yards per carry were nothing to phone home about.

"I think we tried to run the ball inside," Shurmur said, "we also tried to run the ball at the perimeter, and we like to try to run the ball in the mid-zone area as well. So we continue to do all those things."

LeSean McCoy had 88 yards on 23 carries, and is on pace with his workload from a year ago but with one big difference. Last year, McCoy led the NFL in rushing. This year he's second in total attempts but seventh in yards.

"He's in there battling," Shurmur said. "I think when you look at how the year has gone, we can run the ball better for all the reasons we've talked about each week and we just stick with it."

Battle tested

Fletcher holds his own vs. league's best

Bradley Fletcher had a pretty bad start against the Packers as the No. 2 cornerback Sunday. He's been targeted more than any other cornerback in the NFL and was burned early by Jordy Nelson.

So why was he still on the field in the second half? Well, if you ask Eagles defensive coordinator Bill Davis, he'll tell you why.

"I kept a really close eye because he had a bad start and it wasn't going well," Davis said, "and a lot of corners have a lot of outs. They don't keep fighting and battling. I've got a lot of respect for Fletch and how he responded. I was watching him close [and thinking], 'What do I do? Do I make a move?'"

Just a week after a breakout game vs. the Panthers that saw him score his first NFL touchdown, Fletcher battled back. And hard.

"You watched him come out and play in the second half and he made those same plays that beat him in the first," he said. "He was on it; he played the ball. His press was better. He got better and fought through it. He's a mentally tough human being, and I was very impressed with the way he finished.

Owls prepare to deal with Blue Devils

NCAA. The Owls are playing well heading into an early test against ACC powerhouse Duke.

Temple improved its record to 2-0 after notching an 82-75 win over Louisiana Tech on Monday.

Temple guards Will Cummings, Quenton DeCosey and Josh Brown combined for 57 points, a very positive sign after the team as a whole scored just 40 in a 40-37 win over American last week.

They head to Brooklyn on Friday to play No. 4 Duke in the Coaches vs. Cancer Classic, a team they're facing for the sixth time in nine years.

"We'll rest a little bit," said Temple coach Fran Dunphy. "We'll do some stretching, shooting, film work and talk about the [Louisiana Tech] game, but then we'll get into the Duke game immediately. They're a terrific team and we'll welcome the opportunity, because they're a great program. … We know what we're in for and how good they are."

Duke is led by center Jahil Okafor, whose averaging 18 points, 7.5 rebounds and 1.5 blocks this season for the Blue Devils. He's projected by many as the top pick in the 2015 NBA draft. As a team, Duke is second in the nation in scoring with 111 points per game. Temple's defense must be up for the task.

"We're going to put this win behind us and get ready for Duke," said Cummings, who also had a career-high nine rebounds on Monday. "They're a great team with a lot of talented players. We hope we can give a better defensive effort and manage the game more than we did tonight."

One player who will help Temple tremendously is Jaylen Bond, who has missed Temple's first two games with a sprained ankle. Dunphy has praised Bond for his defensive flexibility, as he's able to guard every position on the court. He said there's a chance he'll make his first appearance on Friday.

"[Bond] seems OK, but he didn't seem like he wanted to go yet. So I'll listen, learn and wait," said Dunphy.

Temple has defeated a top 10 opponent in five of the past six seasons, including Duke in the 2011-12 season. In their last meeting, Duke, ranked No. 2 at the time, bested the Owls 90-67.

"It's hard to put value in playing Duke, but I do look at it as a privilege," said Dunphy. "It's a privilege to play college basketball, especially at this institution, because you get a chance to play against the best."

Upset specials

Temple has found recent success against top 10 opponents. Here's a list of their five most recent upsets.

- Dec. 12, 2012: Temple beats third-ranked Syracuse 83-79 on Khalif Wyatt's 33 points at Madison Square Garden, despite a strong effort from current Sixers guard Michael Carter-Williams.
- Jan. 4, 2012: Temple beats third-ranked Duke 78-73 at the Wells Fargo Center on Khalif Wyatt's 22-point performance.
- Dec. 9, 2010: Ramone Moore explodes for a career-high 30 points as Temple drops No. 9 Georgetown 68-65 at the Liacouras Center.
- Dec. 13, 2009: Juan Fernandez puts on a show at home against No. 3 Villanova, notching 33 points which included seven three-pointers in an 75-65 victory.
- Dec. 13, 2008: Dionte Christmas lights up No. 8 Tennessee for 35 points on his bobblehead day in an 88-72 Owls win.

Quoted

"They have a phenomenal program, coach [Krzyzewski] is as good as it gets, and it's a terrific opportunity that we'll relish." Fran Dunphy

Still winless

Sixers return home seeking first win

As expected, things didn't go so well out west for the winless Sixers.

Though they nearly upset the Rockets on Friday in a narrow, one-point defeat, Philly was blown out by both the Mavericks and Spurs.

At home Wednesday against the Celtics (3-6), the 76ers could finally enter the win column. Boston has dropped its last three, though the team did pull off an impressive pair of wins vs. Chicago and Indiana. METRO

3 Things the Phillies must do to fix their outfield

MLB. Rebuilding the Phillies is no easy job, but the outfield is the first place to start.

Even though Marlon Byrd had a stronger season than anyone could have imagined at his advanced age, the Phillies outfield was part of the reason the franchise posted its second consecutive 73-89 season.

Domonic Brown's pathetic OPS was 49th out of 51 outfielders in the MLB. Combine that with his inexplicable play in left and Brown's future in Philly is in doubt.

Ben Revere would be a nice complementary part on a power-laden team. "It's a shame because Revere would be real good with more productive hitters around him," Pete Rose said. "The Phillies outfield just didn't work last season."

ED CONDRAN
@EDDIESCORES
sports@metro.us

If the reports on Tomas' ability are accurate, he would put up some big numbers in Philly. / ALL PHOTOS GETTY IMAGES

1 Sign Cuban star Tomas

It's a perfect marriage on paper. Since the Phillies have failed to develop a potential starting major league outfielder, Ruben Amaro has no option but to turn to his checkbook. Yes, it may cost north of $100 million for an unproven commodity, but Yasmany Tomas — who just turned 24 last week — has reportedly plenty of power and a high ceiling. His agent is already looking ahead to his next deal in seven seasons. If the opposition for his services is the Giants, the Padres and the Tigers, which ballpark is most attractive?

2 Trade Byrd

A number of teams are looking for a veteran outfielder, with some pop. The Phillies would get younger, save some money and score some prospects by trading Byrd, who would love to play for a contender.

"It'll be different than it was during the trade deadline," an NL scout said. "There are a number of teams that will want Byrd. He's played his last game in a Phillies uniform."

3 Don't depend on Sizemore

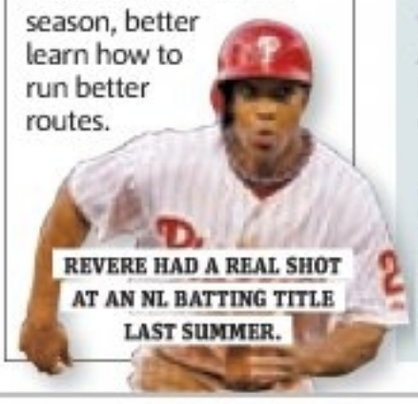
Grady Sizemore will have issues next season. You don't get healthier or better when you age. Sizemore has had almost as many procedures as Joan Rivers. Sizemore's body has been through enough.

Don't expect much production from the once-great player.

THE PHILLIES RECENTLY ANNOUNCED THEY WERE BRINGING BACK SIZEMORE.

4 Rely on Revere

It might irk some fans but Ben Revere will be back as the Phillies center fielder next season. Revere, who was one of only 17 .300 hitters in baseball last season, better learn how to run better routes.



REVERE HAD A REAL SHOT AT AN NL BATTING TITLE LAST SUMMER.

5 Keep Ruf out of outfield

Darin Ruf will not get a shot at a starting outfield job. The organization seems to have made up its mind about the slugger.

When talking young talent for 2015, Ruben Amaro mentioned Freddy Galvis, among others, but not Ruf.

If the Phillies had any hope for Ruf, Ryne Sandberg would have put him in the lineup regularly the last two months of the season.
